

Earth is calling you to work with us

Applications are open

We are EDP, a global energy company present in around 29 markets with a particular emphasis on renewable energies. With more than 45 years of experience, we have been consolidating a relevant presence on the world energy scene based on the commitment to be all-green by 2030, leading the energy transition. With more than 13,000 employees around the world, we are committed to using our energy and heart to drive a better tomorrow.

We need the best and brightest minds in the world working with us to achieve our ambitious goals and our mission - to lead the energy transition. That's why we have decided to launch a global recruitment campaign to attract those who wish to accelerate the energy transition with us.

Who are we looking for?

- Students finishing their academic path by August 2024 or recent graduates with a maximum of 3 years of experience
- Experienced professionals with more than 3 years of professional from all academic backgrounds but with a special interest in the energy sector

What do we have to offer?

- Several worldwide opportunities with different types of contracts to be filled from April until the end of the year
- A flexible and balanced workplace with a market-competitive package
- A diverse team always willing to help and enhance career paths
- The opportunity to build professional networks in an innovative environment

Earth is calling and we would like to have your notable Institution on board, cooperating and supporting us in sharing this opportunity with your students and/or alumni. We would be delighted to receive as many applications as possible from you.

To help, you can find all the information about this global recruitment campaign HERE, and an email proposal (attached) so that you can share this opportunity. If you have any social media available for your target audience, please check the attached toolkit to spread the message as well.

Applications are open until March 17th, and we have opportunities starting throughout the year.

If you have any questions, please contact us.

